

From: Aaron Kleinbaum
To: Daniel Resler; Domenico Stockton Rossini; Carlene Dooley; Mark Fisher; Lisa Morelli
Cc: Gary Wolf
Subject: FW: [EXTERNAL] Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval
Date: Tuesday, July 21, 2020 9:23:25 AM

FYI

From: Judith Enck <judith@climateintegrity.org>
Sent: Monday, July 20, 2020 5:22 PM
To: Aaron Kleinbaum <Aaron.Kleinbaum@law.njoag.gov>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

Subject: Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
July 20, 2020

Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

Bipartisan Measure Urges State to Join Growing Number of Lawsuits Seeking to Hold Big Oil Accountable for Climate Change Costs; Resolution Now Goes to N.J. Senate

Contact: Mike Meno, Center for Climate Integrity, mike@climateintegrity.org or 919-307-6637

Trenton, N.J. - The New Jersey Senate's Environment and Energy committee today approved a resolution calling on Governor Phil Murphy and Attorney General Gurbir Grewal "to pursue legal action against fossil fuel companies for damages caused by climate change." It now goes to the full state Senate for consideration.

The bipartisan proposal, Senate Resolution 57, cites the oil and gas industry's decades-long knowledge that their products posed a "catastrophic" threat to the climate. It outlines many of the costly damages that climate change is now causing to New Jersey's property, infrastructure, and residents through more intense superstorms, flooding, coastal erosion, heatwaves, and more.

"Any corporation that makes a product that causes severe harm when used as intended should shoulder the costs of abating that harm," the resolution reads in part. “...The State of New Jersey should take all appropriate legal action to protect the State from climate change impacts by shifting costs associated with climate change back onto the companies who knew their actions were contributing to climate change and its dangerous impacts, but continued to product, promote, market, and sell fossil fuels.”

SR57 is sponsored by Senate Majority Leader Lorretta Weinbeg and Senator Joseph P. Cryan and co-sponsored by Senator Christopher “Kip” Bateman.

Multiple elected officials and environmental leaders testified in support of the resolution at today’s committee hearing.

- Bradley Beach Council President John Weber pointed to billions of dollars the state has been forced to spend on beach replenishment and said his borough council passed its own resolution calling on the state to hold fossil fuel companies accountable for climate change costs after learning that the industry knew about the harms they were causing for decades. “Hold these companies accountable and get them to pay up,” Weber said.
- Toms River Councilwoman Laurie Huryk said the effects of Superstorm Sandy cost her township approximately $62 million and forced the township and many residents to go into debt to pay for the damage.
- Lauren O’Brien of Pay Up Climate Polluters NJ spoke on behalf of a coalition of 60 organizations across the state that support litigation to hold the fossil fuel industry accountable for the costs of climate damages. “I strongly urge you to pass SR57 and add your voice to the growing number of taxpayers, organizations, and elected leaders who believe New Jerseyans shouldn’t bear this burden alone,” O’Brien testified.
- Groups including the Association of New Jersey Environmental Commissions (ANJEC), New Jersey Sierra Club, Environment New Jersey, Clean Water Action New Jersey, and Clean Ocean Action also voiced their support of the resolution.

Earlier this year, the Atlantic County Board of Freeholders passed a resolution in support of SR57, and the borough councils of Sea Bright and Bradley Beach passed their own resolutions calling on the state to hold fossil fuel companies accountable for climate change costs.

Last year, a study from the Center for Climate Integrity estimated that New Jersey will have to spend \$25 billion on seawalls over the next 20 years to protect homes, infrastructure, and businesses from sea level rise.

Audio of the committee hearing will be available later today at <https://www.njleg.state.nj.us>

Background on Climate Lawsuits:

Since 2017, more than a dozen city and county governments in California, Colorado, Hawaii, Maryland, New York, and Washington, along with the states of Massachusetts, Minnesota, and Rhode Island, and the District of Columbia, have brought lawsuits under different claims to recover billions of dollars damages caused by the oil and gas industry's deception about climate change. Learn about those other cases here.

This year, three separate federal appeals courts ruled that cases in California, Colorado, and Maryland could proceed in state court.

The Center for Climate Integrity, a project of the Institute for Governance & Sustainable Development, launched in 2017 to educate the public and policymakers about the massive costs of coping with the damage attributable to global warming and to support efforts to make climate polluters pay their fair share.

For more information on what ExxonMobil and others in the industry knew about climate change and when, check out the Center for Climate Integrity's "Smoking Guns" document archive or visit PayUpClimatePolluters.org.

###

This email was sent to team@climateintegrity.org
Center for Climate Integrity, 2300 Wisconsin Ave NW, Suite 300B, Washington,
DC 20007, USA
Unsubscribe

From: Mark Fisher
To: Aaron Kleinbaum; Daniel Resler; Domenico Stockton Rossini; Carlene Dooley; Lisa Morelli
Cc: Gary Wolf
Subject: Re: [EXTERNAL] Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval
Date: Tuesday, July 21, 2020 10:23:07 AM

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

From: Aaron Kleinbaum <Aaron.Kleinbaum@law.njoag.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, July 21, 2020 9:23 AM
To: Daniel Resler <Daniel.Resler@law.njoag.gov>; Domenico Stockton Rossini <Domenico.StocktonRossini@law.njoag.gov>; Carlene Dooley <Carlene.Dooley@law.njoag.gov>; Mark Fisher <Mark.Fisher@law.njoag.gov>; Lisa Morelli <Lisa.Morelli@law.njoag.gov>
Cc: Gary Wolf <Gary.Wolf@law.njoag.gov>
Subject: FW: [EXTERNAL] Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

FYI

From: Judith Enck <judith@climateintegrity.org>
Sent: Monday, July 20, 2020 5:22 PM
To: Aaron Kleinbaum <Aaron.Kleinbaum@law.njoag.gov>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

Subject: Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

July 20, 2020

Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

Bipartisan Measure Urges State to Join Growing Number of Lawsuits Seeking to Hold Big Oil Accountable for Climate Change Costs; Resolution Now Goes to N.J. Senate

Contact: Mike Meno, Center for Climate Integrity, mike@climateintegrity.org or 919-307-6637

Trenton, N.J. - The New Jersey Senate's Environment and Energy committee today approved a resolution calling on Governor Phil Murphy and Attorney General Gurbir Grewal "to pursue legal action against fossil fuel companies for damages caused by climate change." It now goes to the full state Senate for consideration.

The bipartisan proposal, Senate Resolution 57, cites the oil and gas industry's decades-long knowledge that their products posed a "catastrophic" threat to the climate. It outlines many of the costly damages that climate change is now causing to New Jersey's property, infrastructure, and residents through more intense superstorms, flooding, coastal erosion, heatwaves, and more.

"Any corporation that makes a product that causes severe harm when used as intended should shoulder the costs of abating that harm," the resolution reads in part. "...The State of New Jersey should take all appropriate legal action to protect the State from climate change impacts by shifting costs associated with climate change back onto the companies who knew their actions were contributing to climate change and its dangerous impacts, but continued to product, promote, market, and sell fossil fuels."

SR57 is sponsored by Senate Majority Leader Lorretta Weinbeg and Senator Joseph P. Cryan and co-sponsored by Senator Christopher "Kip" Bateman. Multiple elected officials and environmental leaders testified in support of the resolution at today's committee hearing.

- Bradley Beach Council President John Weber pointed to billions of dollars the state has been forced to spend on beach replenishment and said his borough council passed its own resolution calling on the state to hold fossil fuel companies accountable for climate change costs after learning that the industry knew about the harms they were causing for decades. "Hold these companies accountable and get them to pay up," Weber said.
- Toms River Councilwoman Laurie Huryk said the effects of Superstorm Sandy cost her township approximately $62 million and forced the township and many residents to go into debt to pay for the damage.
- Lauren O'Brien of Pay Up Climate Polluters NJ spoke on behalf of a coalition of 60 organizations across the state that support litigation to hold the fossil fuel industry accountable for the costs of climate damages. "I strongly urge you to pass SR57 and add your voice to the growing number of taxpayers, organizations, and elected leaders who believe New Jerseyans shouldn't bear this burden alone," O'Brien testified.
- Groups including the Association of New Jersey Environmental Commissions (ANJEC), New Jersey Sierra Club, Environment New Jersey, Clean Water Action New Jersey, and Clean Ocean Action also voiced their support of the resolution.

Earlier this year, the Atlantic County Board of Freeholders passed a resolution in support of SR57, and the borough councils of Sea Bright and Bradley Beach passed their own resolutions calling on the state to hold fossil fuel companies accountable for climate change costs.

Last year, a study from the Center for Climate Integrity estimated that New Jersey will have to spend \$25 billion on seawalls over the next 20 years to protect homes, infrastructure, and businesses from sea level rise.

Audio of the committee hearing will be available later today at <https://www.njleg.state.nj.us>

Background on Climate Lawsuits:

Since 2017, more than a dozen city and county governments in California, Colorado, Hawaii, Maryland, New York, and Washington, along with the states of Massachusetts, Minnesota, and Rhode Island, and the District of Columbia, have brought lawsuits under different claims to recover billions of dollars damages caused by the oil and gas industry's deception about climate change. Learn about those other cases here.

This year, three separate federal appeals courts ruled that cases in California, Colorado, and Maryland could proceed in state court.

The Center for Climate Integrity, a project of the Institute for Governance & Sustainable Development, launched in 2017 to educate the public and policymakers about the massive costs of coping with the damage attributable to global warming and to support efforts to make climate polluters pay their fair share.

For more information on what ExxonMobil and others in the industry knew about climate change and when, check out the Center for Climate Integrity's "Smoking Guns" document archive or visit PayUpClimatePolluters.org.

###

This email was sent to team@climateintegrity.org
Center for Climate Integrity, 2300 Wisconsin Ave NW, Suite 300B, Washington,
DC 20007, USA

Unsubscribe

From: Aaron Kleinbaum
To: Mark Fisher; Daniel Resler; Domenico Stockton Rossini; Carlene Dooley; Lisa Morelli
Cc: Gary Wolf
Subject: RE: [EXTERNAL] Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval
Date: Tuesday, July 21, 2020 10:45:24 AM

[REDACTED]

From: Mark Fisher <Mark.Fisher@law.njoag.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, July 21, 2020 10:23 AM
To: Aaron Kleinbaum <Aaron.Kleinbaum@law.njoag.gov>; Daniel Resler <Daniel.Resler@law.njoag.gov>; Domenico Stockton Rossini <Domenico.StocktonRossini@law.njoag.gov>; Carlene Dooley <Carlene.Dooley@law.njoag.gov>; Lisa Morelli <Lisa.Morelli@law.njoag.gov>
Cc: Gary Wolf <Gary.Wolf@law.njoag.gov>
Subject: Re: [EXTERNAL] Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

From: Aaron Kleinbaum <Aaron.Kleinbaum@law.njoag.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, July 21, 2020 9:23 AM
To: Daniel Resler <Daniel.Resler@law.njoag.gov>; Domenico Stockton Rossini <Domenico.StocktonRossini@law.njoag.gov>; Carlene Dooley <Carlene.Dooley@law.njoag.gov>; Mark Fisher <Mark.Fisher@law.njoag.gov>; Lisa Morelli <Lisa.Morelli@law.njoag.gov>
Cc: Gary Wolf <Gary.Wolf@law.njoag.gov>
Subject: FW: [EXTERNAL] Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

FYI

From: Judith Enck <judith@climateintegrity.org>

Sent: Monday, July 20, 2020 5:22 PM

To: Aaron Kleinbaum <Aaron.Kleinbaum@law.njoag.gov>

Subject: [EXTERNAL] Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

Subject: Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

July 20, 2020

Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

Bipartisan Measure Urges State to Join Growing Number of Lawsuits Seeking to Hold Big Oil Accountable for Climate Change Costs; Resolution Now Goes to N.J. Senate

Contact: Mike Meno, Center for Climate Integrity, mike@climateintegrity.org or 919-307-6637

Trenton, N.J. - The New Jersey Senate's Environment and Energy committee today approved a resolution calling on Governor Phil Murphy and Attorney General Gurbir Grewal "to pursue legal action against fossil fuel companies for damages caused by climate change." It now goes to the full state Senate for consideration.

The bipartisan proposal, Senate Resolution 57, cites the oil and gas industry's decades-long knowledge that their products posed a "catastrophic" threat to the climate. It outlines many of the costly damages that climate change is now causing to New Jersey's property, infrastructure, and residents through more intense superstorms, flooding, coastal erosion, heatwaves, and more.

"Any corporation that makes a product that causes severe harm when used as intended should shoulder the costs of abating that harm," the resolution reads in part. "...The State of New Jersey should take all appropriate legal action to protect the State from climate change impacts by shifting costs associated with climate change back onto the companies who knew their actions were contributing to climate change and its dangerous impacts, but continued to product, promote, market, and sell fossil fuels."

SR57 is sponsored by Senate Majority Leader Lorretta Weinbeg and Senator Joseph P. Cryan and co-sponsored by Senator Christopher "Kip" Bateman. Multiple elected officials and environmental leaders testified in support of the resolution at today's committee hearing.

- Bradley Beach Council President John Weber pointed to billions of dollars the state has been forced to spend on beach replenishment and said his borough council passed its own resolution calling on the state to hold fossil fuel companies accountable for climate change costs after learning that the industry knew about the harms they were causing for decades.

- “Hold these companies accountable and get them to pay up,” Weber said.
- Toms River Councilwoman Laurie Huryk said the effects of Superstorm Sandy cost her township approximately $62 million and forced the township and many residents to go into debt to pay for the damage.
 - Lauren O’Brien of Pay Up Climate Polluters NJ spoke on behalf of a coalition of 60 organizations across the state that support litigation to hold the fossil fuel industry accountable for the costs of climate damages. “I strongly urge you to pass SR57 and add your voice to the growing number of taxpayers, organizations, and elected leaders who believe New Jerseyans shouldn’t bear this burden alone,” O’Brien testified.
 - Groups including the Association of New Jersey Environmental Commissions (ANJEC), New Jersey Sierra Club, Environment New Jersey, Clean Water Action New Jersey, and Clean Ocean Action also voiced their support of the resolution.

Earlier this year, the Atlantic County Board of Freeholders passed a resolution in support of SR57, and the borough councils of Sea Bright and Bradley Beach passed their own resolutions calling on the state to hold fossil fuel companies accountable for climate change costs.

Last year, a study from the Center for Climate Integrity estimated that New Jersey will have to spend \$25 billion on seawalls over the next 20 years to protect homes, infrastructure, and businesses from sea level rise.

Audio of the committee hearing will be available later today at <https://www.njleg.state.nj.us>

Background on Climate Lawsuits:

Since 2017, more than a dozen city and county governments in California, Colorado, Hawaii, Maryland, New York, and Washington, along with the states of Massachusetts, Minnesota, and Rhode Island, and the District of Columbia, have brought lawsuits under different claims to recover billions of dollars damages caused by the oil and gas industry’s deception about climate change. Learn about those other cases here.

This year, three separate federal appeals courts ruled that cases in California, Colorado, and Maryland could proceed in state court.

The Center for Climate Integrity, a project of the Institute for Governance & Sustainable Development, launched in 2017 to educate the public and policymakers about the massive costs of coping with the damage attributable to global warming and to support efforts to make climate polluters pay their fair share.

For more information on what ExxonMobil and others in the industry knew about climate change and when, check out the Center for Climate Integrity’s “Smoking Guns” document archive or visit PayUpClimatePolluters.org.

###

This email was sent to team@climateintegrity.org
Center for Climate Integrity, 2300 Wisconsin Ave NW, Suite 300B, Washington,
DC 20007, USA
Unsubscribe

From: Daniel Resler
To: Aaron Kleinbaum; Mark Fisher; Domenico Stockton Rossini; Carlene Dooley; Lisa Morelli
Cc: Gary Wolf
Subject: Re: [EXTERNAL] Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval
Date: Tuesday, July 21, 2020 11:01:36 AM

[REDACTED]

From: Aaron Kleinbaum <Aaron.Kleinbaum@law.njoag.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, July 21, 2020 10:45 AM
To: Mark Fisher <Mark.Fisher@law.njoag.gov>; Daniel Resler <Daniel.Resler@law.njoag.gov>; Domenico Stockton Rossini <Domenico.StocktonRossini@law.njoag.gov>; Carlene Dooley <Carlene.Dooley@law.njoag.gov>; Lisa Morelli <Lisa.Morelli@law.njoag.gov>
Cc: Gary Wolf <Gary.Wolf@law.njoag.gov>
Subject: RE: [EXTERNAL] Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

[REDACTED]

From: Mark Fisher <Mark.Fisher@law.njoag.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, July 21, 2020 10:23 AM
To: Aaron Kleinbaum <Aaron.Kleinbaum@law.njoag.gov>; Daniel Resler <Daniel.Resler@law.njoag.gov>; Domenico Stockton Rossini <Domenico.StocktonRossini@law.njoag.gov>; Carlene Dooley <Carlene.Dooley@law.njoag.gov>; Lisa Morelli <Lisa.Morelli@law.njoag.gov>
Cc: Gary Wolf <Gary.Wolf@law.njoag.gov>
Subject: Re: [EXTERNAL] Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

From: Aaron Kleinbaum <Aaron.Kleinbaum@law.njoag.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, July 21, 2020 9:23 AM
To: Daniel Resler <Daniel.Resler@law.njoag.gov>; Domenico Stockton Rossini <Domenico.StocktonRossini@law.njoag.gov>; Carlene Dooley <Carlene.Dooley@law.njoag.gov>; Mark Fisher <Mark.Fisher@law.njoag.gov>; Lisa Morelli <Lisa.Morelli@law.njoag.gov>
Cc: Gary Wolf <Gary.Wolf@law.njoag.gov>
Subject: FW: [EXTERNAL] Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

FYI

From: Judith Enck <judith@climateintegrity.org>
Sent: Monday, July 20, 2020 5:22 PM
To: Aaron Kleinbaum <Aaron.Kleinbaum@law.njoag.gov>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

Subject: Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
July 20, 2020

Resolution Calling on N.J. to Sue Fossil Fuel Companies Gets Committee Approval

Bipartisan Measure Urges State to Join Growing Number of Lawsuits Seeking to Hold Big Oil Accountable for Climate Change Costs; Resolution Now Goes to N.J. Senate

Contact: Mike Meno, Center for Climate Integrity, mike@climateintegrity.org or 919-307-6637

Trenton, N.J. - The New Jersey Senate's Environment and Energy committee today approved a resolution calling on Governor Phil Murphy and Attorney General Gurbir Grewal "to pursue legal action against fossil fuel companies for damages caused by climate change." It now goes to the full state Senate for consideration.

The bipartisan proposal, Senate Resolution 57, cites the oil and gas industry's decades-long knowledge that their products posed a "catastrophic" threat to the climate. It outlines many of the costly damages that climate change is now causing to New Jersey's property, infrastructure, and residents through more intense superstorms, flooding, coastal erosion, heatwaves, and more.

"Any corporation that makes a product that causes severe harm when used as intended should shoulder the costs of abating that harm," the resolution reads in part. "...The State of New Jersey should take all appropriate legal action to protect the State from climate change impacts by shifting costs associated with climate change back onto the companies who knew their actions were contributing to climate change and its dangerous impacts, but continued to product, promote, market, and sell fossil fuels.”

SR57 is sponsored by Senate Majority Leader Lorretta Weinbeg and Senator Joseph P. Cryan and co-sponsored by Senator Christopher “Kip” Bateman. Multiple elected officials and environmental leaders testified in support of the resolution at today’s committee hearing.

- Bradley Beach Council President John Weber pointed to billions of dollars the state has been forced to spend on beach replenishment and said his borough council passed its own resolution calling on the state to hold fossil fuel companies accountable for climate change costs after learning that the industry knew about the harms they were causing for decades. “Hold these companies accountable and get them to pay up,” Weber said.
- Toms River Councilwoman Laurie Huryk said the effects of Superstorm Sandy cost her township approximately $62 million and forced the township and many residents to go into debt to pay for the damage.
- Lauren O’Brien of Pay Up Climate Polluters NJ spoke on behalf of a coalition of 60 organizations across the state that support litigation to hold the fossil fuel industry accountable for the costs of climate damages. “I strongly urge you to pass SR57 and add your voice to the growing number of taxpayers, organizations, and elected leaders who believe New Jerseyans shouldn’t bear this burden alone,” O’Brien testified.
- Groups including the Association of New Jersey Environmental Commissions (ANJEC), New Jersey Sierra Club, Environment New Jersey, Clean Water Action New Jersey, and Clean Ocean Action also voiced their support of the resolution.

Earlier this year, the Atlantic County Board of Freeholders passed a resolution in support of SR57, and the borough councils of Sea Bright and Bradley Beach passed their own resolutions calling on the state to hold fossil fuel companies accountable for climate change costs.

Last year, a study from the Center for Climate Integrity estimated that New Jersey will have to spend \$25 billion on seawalls over the next 20 years to protect homes, infrastructure, and businesses from sea level rise.

Audio of the committee hearing will be available later today at

<https://www.njleg.state.nj.us>

Background on Climate Lawsuits:

Since 2017, more than a dozen city and county governments in California, Colorado, Hawaii, Maryland, New York, and Washington, along with the states of Massachusetts, Minnesota, and Rhode Island, and the District of Columbia, have brought lawsuits under different claims to recover billions of dollars damages caused by the oil and gas industry’s deception about climate change. Learn about those other cases here.

This year, three separate federal appeals courts ruled that cases in California, Colorado, and Maryland could proceed in state court.

The Center for Climate Integrity, a project of the Institute for Governance & Sustainable Development, launched in 2017 to educate the public and policymakers about the massive costs of coping with the damage attributable to global warming and to support efforts to make climate polluters pay their fair share.

For more information on what ExxonMobil and others in the industry knew about climate change and when, check out the Center for Climate Integrity's "Smoking Guns" document archive or visit PayUpClimatePolluters.org.

###

This email was sent to team@climateintegrity.org
Center for Climate Integrity, 2300 Wisconsin Ave NW, Suite 300B, Washington,
DC 20007, USA
Unsubscribe