Hi Debbie,

I will be in a meeting during this Fri lunch time but can do Thurs the 23rd any time between 1030-230.

Ideas of costs for storm damage could include:
- overtime for emergency response staff / police
- public property damage not covered by insurance
- FEMA submissions

Anything taxpayers are responsible for.

Thank you!

Hello,

I am reaching out to you because the Office of Sustainability (Newark) is facilitating the Climate Justice Ambassador program this summer. My name is Habeebah and I am the Equity, Diversity, Inclusion Fellow working with Nathaly and Yaritza, the Program Assistant, on the summer program.

I wanted to know if you are available to speak with our ambassadors at the Greater Newark Conservancy (GNC) on Wednesday, July 20th from 9:20am-10:30am to provide a Climate Change 101 lesson, especially as it pertains to the urban cities such as Newark. We want our student interns to become familiar with climate change terms and have a foundational understanding as we build upon this throughout the program. Their ages range from 14-18 and there will be about 20 interns.

We would love to have you speak to our Ambassadors (there are currently 18-20) in person. If this does not work for you, there is a virtual option, however we were hoping for 30 minutes of presentation followed by an activity that can help students have a hands on understanding of climate change. Myself and Yaritza could potentially do an activity recommended if you explain it to us so we can facilitate it with our student interns, as an option if you cannot attend in person.

Please let me know if you are interested and available.

educates on the industry's long history of knowledge and deception regarding their products' role in global warming. We know that communities everywhere are facing unprecedented climate-driven disasters such as Hurricane Ida, and that becoming more resilient against these threats is incredibly expensive. To make matters worse, the enormous price tags for disaster recovery and climate adaptation are falling entirely on taxpayers, while the corporate polluters who knowingly caused the climate crisis contribute nothing.

Would you be interested in a phone chat soon?

So, I am now attending an event at the White House on the IRA that afternoon, but it should be over by then. So I can listen in, but I do not think I will be on video. Debbie

Hello!

As we all transition from restful to busy times, I am reminding you about next week's virtual messaging training customized for YOU as a New Jersey Leader for Climate Accountability.

Please join Lauren O'Brien and staff experts from the Center for Climate Integrity team for a crash course on different messaging tactics that communities are using to make the case for climate accountability. The CCI team will prepare you to speak about this issue in clear and effective language, and provide tips and guidance for how to push back against common industry talking points.

Tuesday, September 13th
5:00-6:00pm
on Zoom

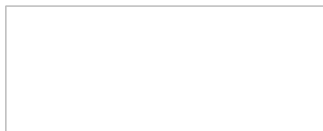

Please confirm that you can attend by the end of Thursday, September 8th.

We will also share some climate accountability good news!

Good luck this week ramping up and hope to see you soon,

Lauren

Hello Councilwoman,

We met a few times at the League of Municipalities, and you were pretty familiar with the movement to hold the oil industry legally accountable for their fair share of climate damages in New Jersey and across the nation. GOLD STAR!

I

(CCI), a nonprofit organization that

educates on the industry's long history of knowledge and deception regarding their products' role in global warming. We know that communities everywhere are facing unprecedented climate-driven disasters such as Hurricane Ida, and that becoming more resilient against these threats is incredibly expensive. To make matters worse, the enormous price tags for disaster recovery and climate adaptation are falling entirely on taxpayers, while the corporate polluters who knowingly caused the climate crisis contribute nothing.

Would you be interested in a phone chat soon?

I would like to hear how climate impacts affect the Glen Ridge area, and also update you on local government actions towards climate accountability.

Let's reconnect soon and have a good weekend!
